

Knowledgebase > FAQs > General > How are messages counted? (I.e. if I send a message to a list of 5,000, does that count as 1 message or 5,000 messages?)

How are messages counted? (I.e. if I send a message to a list of 5,000, does that count as 1 message or 5,000 messages?)

Sam Pelton - 2025-08-13 - Comments (0) - General

Each recipient who is sent your message counts as 1 message.

For example, a message sent to 200 recipients would count as 200 messages.

(Note that if your message is more than 160 characters, it will split into 2 or more messages so it will use up more messages on your account.)

Sending as MMS

You also have the option to send as an MMS message. This option allows you to include an image, as well as have up to 1550 characters in your message, but it counts as 3 messages per recipient instead of 1. (So with this option, a message sent to 200 recipients would count as 600 messages, for example.)

Using emojis

If you include an emoji, each emoji counts as 3 characters. When sending your message as a regular SMS and including an emoji, the maximum character limit is reduced to 70 instead of 160, because it requires that the message be processed differently.

(Including an emoji doesn't change the maximum character limit for MMS.)